ADAMS.

Miss Donovan Wins the Piano. The contest for the $750 E. Connor piano, continued from the late temperance fair, was ended Friday night at a dance held by the society at the opera house. The dance began about 9.45 o'clock and was kept up until 4 o'clock this morning. Neary's orchestra furnished music and P. J. Keliher prompted. Supper was served at Grand Army hall. The piano contest closed at 11 o'clock and was won by Miss Alice Donovan. The amounts collected by the several young ladies were as follows: Miss Alice Donovan, $213.98; Miss Nellie King, $172.35; Miss Lizette St. John, $151.05; Miss Jennie O'Garra of Dalton, $107.

Miss Hannah Whitaker. The old maxim that "misfortunes never come singly" is almost proven by the death of Miss Hannah E. Whitaker, a bright and popular young woman of West street, who died Friday night, just a week later than her younger brother who died of typhoid fever. Miss Whitaker's end was due to the same epidemic from which she had been a sufferer for twenty-one days yesterday. Miss Whitaker was born in Hancock, December 20, 1845, and was the oldest daughter of F. Snyder and Phoebe Whitaker. The family has lived in Adams only five months but that time was long enough to bring to Miss Whitaker many staunch friends. She was always pleasant and happy and in a quiet way won the love of all with whom she came in contact. The remains will be taken to New Lebanon Monday for interment and a prayer service will be held at the home of her parents on West street previous to the removal. Rev. Mr. Penniman will officiate.

Tim, the Tinker. Tuesday evening the attraction at the opera house will be John E. Brennan, the gentle Irish comedian, in "Tim, the Tinker," which was written expressly for him. The play is a first-class comedy and all lovers of comedy will be gratified by some of the best to be afforded. Mr. Brennan has a first-class quartet, and some of the best people in the Irish comedy line are included in his cast.

Mrs. Euphemia Young. Mrs. Euphemia Young, wife of Robert Young, died at her home at Renfrew at 10 o'clock Friday afternoon, after a long illness of typhoid fever. Mrs. Young was born in Scotland 37 years ago and was a daughter of John and Euphemia Leishman. She came to Adams with her parents in 1874 and has lived here ever since. A few years afterwards she became the wife of Robert Young and the couple lived in peace and comfort until the terrible disease which has robbed many Adams homes this winter, entered their household and settled itself upon Mrs. Young, her mother and her daughter, Euphemia. The latter died a few weeks ago, but Mrs. Leishman recovered. Since her daughter's death Mrs. Young has lingered between life and death. Mrs. Young was a thoroughly good woman, attending to the labors of her household so strictly that she made few acquaintances, but of these few she could depend upon the hearty friendship, and many of the friends of her girlhood, who have not seen her for years, remember her for what she was then and ever afterwards and feel the same sorrow as her closest friends of today. Mrs. Young is survived by her mother, her husband and two sons, John and William Young. The funeral will occur from her late home at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Penniman of the Congregational church of which Mrs. Young was a member and regular attendant, will officiate.

An Unsuccessful Raid. Friday afternoon Chief Curran and Officers Rodecker and Hiser ridden Charles Morrison's pool room on Park street but were unable to find anything in the line of intoxicating liquors.

Miss Mary A. Powers has returned home after an enjoyable vacation in South Hadley Falls. Thomas F. Cassidy has generously donated $50 of the $100 awarded to him at St. Charles fair, to the church fund. Harvey Button is building two new houses on West street.

The bangers for Company M's dedication ball are out. They announce the price of tickets for the ball as $1.50, and supper to be served by Caterer Hammond will be 75 cents a plate.

Burt Oakes of North Adams was fined $5 in court this morning for drunkenness. Mrs. C. W. Burton, teacher of music and French at the high school is writing a song for the high school. The school has chosen red and white for its color and will have a banner made. The local Socialist club has about thirty members, or thirty per cent of the socialist vote of the town. New members are being taken in at every meeting.

C. T. Plunkett and family arrived in New York Friday night from their extended European tour. They will come home today.

Carpenters are wanted at the new Berkshire mill. Lawyer William S. Morton was in Hoochick Falls, N. Y., Friday, on business. Prof. Seymour will be at the opera house again this evening and next week he will alternate between this town and North Adams.

CHESHIRE.

The two gravel trains that have been kept steadily running for several weeks are to be taken off for the season. One will be stopped tonight, the other will be used to finish up some of the unfinished work where it is necessary to fill in the odd places a couple of days.

There will be a meeting held at the Hook school house Thursday evening, to arrange, if possible, for the disposal of the Greyclay cheese factory, turning it into a creamery or some use for another season. The receipts of the Brigham entertainment at the M. E. church were a help to the finances of that society of nearly $20. Mrs. A. T. Viner will spend a few days at Florida, going there today.

Fisher Farnum returned yesterday from Gloucester, at which place he went the second time for his health, much improved.

The funeral of B. F. Reynolds was held yesterday. His sister, Mrs. Conant and her daughter of Valatia, N. Y., were present.

The last mail train from the south yesterday, failed to furnish us any mail, as the Postal agent was reported to be sick. It was a disappointment which has not happened here before for that reason. As it was the mail came on the 9 p. m. train.

WILLIAMSTOWN.

Williams '98 Elects Officers.

The Sophomore class in Williams college held a meeting Friday evening and elected the following men for one year: President, Lewis Perry, Williamsstown; vice-president, John H. Lotz, Kinsman, Ohio; secretary, George B. Barrell, Albion, N. Y.; treasurer, Olney B. Malra, Brooklyn, N. Y.; choragus, Albert E. Holmes, Kansas City, Mo.; class poet, William H. Matthews, Huntington; historian, Philip M. Brown, Woburn. Lawrence R. Howard was elected a member of the conference committee in place of P. M. Brown whose term expired last June. A. C. Twitchell of Portland, Me., was elected manager of the foot ball team and A. R. T. Davis of Fall River, was chosen captain. The foot ball team will organize immediately and a game with the freshmen will take place.

"Tim the Tinker." John E. Brennan will appear in "Tim the Tinker" in Waterman & Moore's opera house next Monday night. The play comes highly recommended and should play to a full house.

Lindley Bros. have placed a large new engine in their shop and now have power enough to run all their machinery to its full capacity. The oyster supper at the Congregational church Friday night was largely attended and was a great success. A neat sum was netted.

Robert Mudge of Boston rendered some very fine vocal selections Friday night in the Grange hall. He was assisted by some home talent and the evening passed off very pleasantly.

Principal H. P. Strong of the Williams-town high school went to Manchester, Vt., Friday.

Mrs. Dr. Belden, who has been quite ill, is able to be out again.

WANTS ALL IN SIGHT.

Great Britain's Greed Plainly Shown In the Venezuelan Affair.

Americans Do Not Propose to Abandon Concessions.

An Important Matter Rapidly Assuming a Most Acute Phase.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—William N. Saford, counsel for the Orinoco company—the American syndicate which controls the Venezuelan concessions—makes plain the position now being assumed by the Orinoco company.

"The company," he said, "proposes to work its concessions without delay. It will send prospectors along the line of the Imbabura mountains, whose foothills are supposed to be ample in gold mines. That territory is of course in the company's concessions and has always been marked so on the map. But now that there is a prospect of gold there, Great Britain steps in and claims it. Arrangements are being made to send our men there to develop the company's concessions—not with any intent to start a controversy, but to assert the company's rights. Besides the mines there are other properties in the concessions awaiting development. "Great Britain refers to the Schomburgk line, but the fact is she has gone beyond that. This line is purely imaginary. Sir Robert Schomburgk visited Venezuela in 1840, and, starting at Point Barana, merely drew a line southward on the map. It is susceptible of proof that no never surveyed the line. The Venezuelan government has conclusive evidence that he made no survey.

"In 1850 Great Britain asserted that it had no intention to occupy or usurp disputed territory, nor could it brook any aggression, etc. The inference was that a neutral attitude was to be maintained. So matters went until 1885. In that year rich gold fields, now yielding $4,000,000 a year were discovered west of the Schomburgk line, between the Guiana and Purumau rivers. They are known as the Barana gold fields, and are 50 to 60 miles west of the Schomburgk line.

"Nevertheless, Great Britain promptly stepped in and claimed that territory. And so she has gone on since, claiming land wherever gold has been discovered. The Orinoco company claims those gold fields as being in its concession, and proposes to stand up for its perfectly clear title to them.

Just what Great Britain covers is made plain by the following facts: Land grant including over 14,000,000 acres of the richest land in the world, was conceded to C. G. Fitzgibbon by the government of Venezuela on Sept. 23, 1893. The concessions came later into the possession of the Manoa company—composed of American capitalists. A few weeks ago the Manoa company held a meeting in the Astor House in New York. The meeting was for the purpose of turning over the lease of the concessions to the Orinoco company. This last corporation was organized recently under the laws of the state of Washington. It will issue $25,000,000 worth of bonds to develop the concessions.

On June 13 last President Crespo reaffirmed the lease held by the Manoa company.

The lands covered by the lease hold a practically inexhaustible deposit of gold, vast gold and other mineral fields and mahogany forests. These lands are worth millions upon millions.

In Question For Years. For years the dispute respecting the boundary line in Venezuela between that country and Great Britain has dragged along in tedious diplomatic intercourse. The question as to Great Britain's claim of Venezuelan territory has never been settled conclusively. Specially the British have concluded upon Venezuelan lands until now they are actually claiming 7,000,000 acres of valuable gold mining country, the concessions of which have been granted by the Venezuelan government to a syndicate composed of American citizens.

Great Britain has advanced her aggressive claims wherever land of value has been discovered. It is precisely this fact and the determination of the United States to uphold its rights to its concessions that promise to bring about grave complications very shortly.

In the first place, United States prospectors, miners and workmen will soon be at work actively on the very ground claimed by the British. Secondly, the Venezuelan government, it was learned yesterday, has been quietly supplying itself with modern armament. Among other supplies, 100,000 Mauser guns have been ordered from Europe. It is true General Crespo, President of Venezuela, did not order them directly. It is doubtful whether the English firm that manufactured them knew their destination. They were ordered from this country with instructions to be sent to an exporting house in New York. The facts bear out the supposition that Venezuela is determined to resist aggression by the British and prove that the citizens of the United States who held the concessions in Venezuela are resolved to assert their rights immediately.

What the British will do when a large force of American workmen proceed to develop the territory claimed by them is the very latest interesting problem and one which carries with it grave results.

POPULISTIC VIEWS

Expressed in the Platform of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19.—Delegates from 35 states and territories, representing nearly 200,000 members of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, congregated at Music hall yesterday to attend the 32d annual convention of that society.

A union of reform forces is contemplated, and the leaders have agreed to the following basis, which is commended to the good will of all White Ribbon women:

1. Direct legislation, the initiative and referendum in all national, state and local matters; the imperative mandate and proportional representation. 2. When any branch of legitimate business becomes a monopoly in the hands of a few against the interests of the many, not in justice but by the manipulation of the state or the nation, and administered by the people. 3. The election of president and vice president and of United States senators by direct vote of the people, and also of all civil officers so far as practicable. 4. Equal suffrage without distinction of sex. 5. As the land is the rightful heritage of the people, no tenure should be held without use. 6. Prohibition of the liquor traffic for beverage purposes and governmental control of the sale for medicinal, scientific and mechanical uses. 7. All money—paper, gold and silver—should be issued by the national government only, and made legal tender for all payments, public or private on future contracts, and in amounts adequate to the demands of business. 8. The free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1.

"I Am the Duke." New York, Oct. 19.—The blotter of a sub-police station in Central Park bears the official record of the arrest of the Duke of Marlborough for coming at the rate of 15 miles an hour. Officer Seavey, who arrested him, says: "I told the watchman

I would have to put him under arrest. 'This is an outrage. I am the Duke of Marlborough. How dare you insult me in this unwarranted manner?' he said. 'It matters nothing to me who you may be,' said Seavey. 'I shall have to take you into custody.' Turning to several bystanders, the duke is said to have pleaded for their intervention. The duke was escorted to the police station, where he was reprimanded and released.

A STAMPEDE EXPECTED

But It Failed to Materialize at a Republican Ratification.

Calls For Hoar and Morse
Created an Uproar.

Big Crowd Finally Calmed Down and Listened to Speeches.

Boston, Oct. 19.—The Republican ratification meeting held in Music hall last night, while it lasted, was one of the most exciting ever known at a political meeting in this city. It is claimed that the interruption was part of a deliberate plan, of which intimation was given before hand, to stampede the audience by calling for Senator George F. Hoar and Congressman Elijah A. Morse, neither of whom it was alleged, would be permitted by the management to speak.

The meeting was about half through when, as Lieutenant Governor Wolcott finished speaking, some one in the gallery called for Senator Hoar. A hundred voices replied in a shout for Congressman Morse. For the next five minutes the hall was filled with a babel of voices, intermingled with the strains of the band—which was requested to play the vigorous pounding of the president's office's gavel and the vigorous cheering of many of the spectators to quiet the turbulent ones.

A length the presiding officer made himself heard, and after some minutes order was restored. The excitement throughout the hall while the opposing cries swelled to the very roof was intense, and Congressman Barrett, the presiding officer, vigorously rebuked the action, after the disturbance had subsided. The meeting then settled down, and the proceedings were not again interrupted.

It was claimed by several in the audience that although Senator Hoar had been announced as a speaker he had subsequently been requested by the management not to appear, and also, that Congressman Morse had been asked permission to speak, but had been refused. Senator Hoar and Congressman Morse represented opposite sides of the A. P. A. question in the Republican party, Mr. Morse championing the cause and Senator Hoar opposing the organization.

The hall was crowded to the very doors, while the platform held a large number of prominent members of the party, including T. C. Evans, the author of the famous A. P. A. letters to Senator Hoar. Mr. Evans led in three cheers for Lieutenant Governor Wolcott at the conclusion of the lieutenant governor's speech.

The Speeches.
The governor said: "The campaign has been in progress two weeks, and we know something of what our opponents claim. There is something familiar about the words lobby, corporations and the governor's council, all of which issues they have again brought out. I have been about the state considerably during the past month, and the thinking, reasonable men believe in what they think is an honest attempt to do a fair administration. They believe if there are any flagrant evils that the administration will make an honest attempt to remove those evils. I welcome any suggestion of good that will benefit the commonwealth. We want all the improvement we can get in all branches of the government."

"Parties are judged more frequently not by what they do when in a minority, but what they do in their hour of triumph. The people desire the strong hand of the Republican party in making the flag respected at home and abroad. They believe in a sturdy attorney general rather than in a visionary solicitor general. They believe in business methods, and if wrongs exist the courts are open and the legislative doors are wide to receive any complaints."

"Speeches are of little consequence when the action is lined out in all its sincerity. Let the spirit of the Republican party be broad, and let not the principles of our forefathers, founded on Plymouth Rock, be weakened. We must remember that duty means diligence."

Lieutenant Governor Wolcott
was the next speaker, and dwelt on the great benefit which Massachusetts derived from her many commissions, which looked after the corporations in a most vigorous manner. The speaker said that he had always maintained that after a reasonable time for the capital, the corporations should hand back to the community the proceeds of its thrift, either by reduced car fares, more frequent trains on railroads, lower rates for gas and electric light and other benefits to the public. The speaker paid a glowing tribute to the integrity of the railroad commission as well as other commissions of the state, and when he said that Massachusetts was proud of her public schools the cheering lasted fully two minutes.

The interruption already mentioned occurred at the conclusion of Lieutenant Governor Wolcott's speech. When quiet was introduced, Attorney General Knowlton was introduced. He sketched the history of the now famous solicitor general, and said that it was one of the royal offices established in this country under British rule, previous to the revolution. Only one officer ever held this position under colonial rule, and after he resigned nothing more was heard of the office till the present time. The attorney general touched upon national issues, and his mention of Thomas B. Reed as the next candidate for president created unbounded enthusiasm. The last speaker was

Curtis Guild, Jr.

Mr. Guild said: "We meet to endorse the action of the Republican convention. Our antagonists frankly concede the high character, the impartial administration and the manly courage of our chief executive. The Democratic endorsement of the Republican candidate before the convention practically renounces state issues from the campaign. Greenhalge and Wolcott stand for more than their own honor and records. They stand as the representative of that great party that is about again to assume the guidance, not of Massachusetts alone, but of the nation."

"We support them finally because the patriotism of all Americans has been outraged by the lack of reverence of Andrew Johnson, who was as good as in Turkey; because our foreign commerce has been curtailed by the fanatical destruction of our reciprocity treaties; because our honor has been outraged."

SPEED OF 15.61 KNOTS
Attained by the Battleship Indiana in Her Official Trial Trip.

Boston, Oct. 19.—The battleship Indiana made her official speed trial yesterday over the government ocean course, 8 knots seaward from Cape Ann and return, and showed an average speed of 15.61 knots an hour, which, if not decreased by the tide allowance, will entitle the Grampa, her builders, to a bonus of $60,000. The ship was required to show a speed of only 15 knots, while for every quarter knot above that requisite the firm is entitled to $5,000. At the end of the run the Indiana had shown herself to be the finest vessel of her class afloat.

Notwithstanding the fact that she had her trial practically in lightning trim, the battleship did not roll even in the slightest degree, which is deemed wonderful by the naval experts who were on board. It has even been necessary in the cases of several foreign battleships to add to their big keels in order to prevent them from rolling to the danger point during their trials. Another remarkable incident attending yesterday's run was the fact that the Indiana made her fastest time on the last leg of the course, doing the 6.2 knots in 22m. 49s., or at an average speed of 16.34 knots, developing over 11,000 horse power, and winding up her splendid performance by making a complete turn inside of 100 yards.

A PERSONAL NARRATIVE

Of John Sherman's Forty Years' Experience in National Politics.

Intrigues and Bickerings Are Shown in True Light.

Some Highly Interesting Extracts From the Statesman's New Book.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—"John Sherman's Recollections of Forty Years in the House, Senate and Cabinet," just published in this city, reveals the intrigues, the jealousies and the treacherous knife-thrusts of the last half century of American statecraft.

The fear that the venerable senator would reveal secrets long kept from the public in his forthcoming work has been to an extent realized. Grant, Garfield, Blaine, Arthur, Harrison and other Republican leaders are spoken of with unflinching praise for their high personal worth or statesmanship, but each is in guarded and covert language shown in the less commendable light of scheming politicians. The criticism is almost invariably implied rather than direct, but it stands out clearly in the work as a whole.

Owing to the expectation that the work would be in a measure sensational, and the anxiety felt in diplomatic circles over its forthcoming, frequent effort has been to gain information regarding its contents, but today, for the first time, a resume of Mr. Sherman's autobiography is presented. As anticipated, the feature of the book is its extreme frankness, the style in which Mr. Sherman has expressed himself showing the statesman rather than the professional bookmaker.

The work is marked by clear-cut sentences and blunt expressions of opinion, and but little attempt at literary grace is made. The book is very evidently intended by the author as an exposition of the financial policy of the Republican party, which to a great extent is his own.

Owing to the close association of Mr. Sherman and James A. Garfield, the criticism of the nomination of the latter for President of the United States is perhaps one of the most striking features of the book. The author very significantly makes it plain that Mr. Garfield was nominated at a convention to which he had gone as a trusted leader of the Sherman forces. After showing that Mr. Garfield was in reality his political protégé, Mr. Sherman gives in detail the history of the national convention of 1880. Following the account of his own struggle for the nomination, he says:

His Feelings Hurt.
In time I became thoroughly advised of what occurred at the Chicago convention and had become reconciled to the result, though frequently afterward I heard incidents and details which occasioned me great pain and which seemed to establish the want of sincerity on the part of some of the delegates, and tended to show that for some time before the meeting of the convention the nomination of General Garfield had been agreed upon.

The sting felt by Garfield's defection in 1880 is inadvertently shown by a sentiment expressed during the discussion of the national convention of 1892, where the senator remarks:

From later developments I became satisfied that Harrison could not be elected, that Platt and a powerful New York influence would defeat him if nominated. I therefore preferred the nomination of a new man, such as William McKinley, but he had committed himself to Harrison, and according to my code of honor, could not accept a nomination even if tendered him.

When it was remembered that Blaine was also a candidate for the presidency before the convention that nominated Garfield, the significance of the following explanation on the part of Senator Sherman of why he was not reappointed by President Garfield as secretary of the treasury is readily understood:

In the latter part of November, 1880, General Garfield came to Washington and called upon Mr. Blaine, who, it was understood, was to be secretary of state. Garfield came to my house directly from Blaine's and informed me that he had tendered that office to Blaine and that it was accepted. To say the least, it was not to be politics to continue as secretary of the treasury, as it would be regarded as an unfriendly discrimination by other members of Hayes' cabinet. I promptly replied that I agreed with the opinion of Blaine, and was a candidate for the senate.

Again the author refers to the Chicago convention in discussing the character of President Garfield. Of his personality and eloquence, he speaks in the highest terms. His will power, he says, was not up to his personal magnetism. He adds that his opinion changed easily.

Political Corruption.
Speaking of the political scheming that again resulted in the defeat of the Ohio statesman in the national convention of 1884, Sherman says that he became satisfied that one delegate from New York controlled the entire delegation from that state, and between Saturday night, when the nomination seemed certain to go to Sherman, and Monday morning, when the tide turned in favor of Harrison, a corrupt bargain was made in the interests of the latter, which secured him the support of New York and gave him the nomination.

On the eve of another national campaign, in which ex-President Harrison is expected to figure prominently, Mr. Sherman does not hesitate to state that in 1892 he did not consider Harrison a strong candidate. To his credit and abrupt manner he attributes his unpopularity at that time.

Space is devoted by the author to an account of the important events of each administration. In this connection Mr. Sherman lays bare many of the jealousies, political bickerings and class of ambitions that disturb the harmony of the party in power. Of the years administration of General Grant, Sherman says that it was a period of scandal and slander. Perhaps the severest criticism of General Grant's statesmanship is found in the following extract from Mr. Sherman's work:

During the entire period of Grant's administration I was chairman of the committee of managers of the senate, and had to accompany all the senators to the senate chamber and had occasion to talk with the president upon such measures, but he rarely expressed any opinion or took any interest in them.

At the age of 72 years, Senator Sherman really is an old man, and his first appearance in public life. Many of his important public addresses during the slavery agitation and during the political campaigns in which he took part are embodied in the book. His accounts of the civil war and of his association with Abraham Lincoln are full of interest as narrative and of a historical record of the stirring events of that period.

Why He Abstains From Drink.
In writing about himself, Mr. Sherman is candid to the point of self-criticism. For instance, he states that at the age of 19 years he got into bad company and was on several occasions conscious of being intoxicated. In relating the incident which influenced his whole life in this respect, he says:

On one occasion, the fall of 1880, I went home very sick from drinking. My mother received me with much surprise and sorrow, but neither complained nor scolded, and with the utmost kindness put me to bed and watched over and cared for me. I was not enough stupefied to be unconscious of my degradation and her affection, and then and there resolved never to be in such condition again.

Rich in ripe conclusions, full of interest as a personal narrative, instructive as a political record, and complete as a financial history of the country, the work adds to recent books of American history one of general interest and of value to students of politics and finance.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Indications of a General Improvement All Along the Line.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The events of the week are promising in nature, though in speculative markets not entirely encouraging. The great advances in cotton had arrested exports and so deranged exchange that shipments of gold were for a time apprehended, but the break in the market indicates that the natural movement of the product may soon be restored.

The falling of demand and moderate yielding of prices in the great industrial markets show that a season of reasonable attention to natural conditions has arrived and give hope that the future demand will be more nearly proportioned to actual consumption.

The cotton market has been partly cornered for early delivery by a New Orleans operator and his followers, as it has been twice in not distant years by Liverpool speculators, which ended in failure.

Failures for the week have been 208 in the United States, against 253 last year, and 40 in Canada, against 43 last year.

The End Not Yet.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 19.—The reforms are not, properly speaking, the granting of fresh privileges so much as recapitulating and providing for the regular administration of already existing codes, affecting the well-being of Moslems as well as Christians. The Armenians consider that the concessions are illusory, and Turkish officials admit that they were wrung from the Porte under violent pressure. The Turks are most furious, and many competent observers do not hesitate to predict a crisis leading to revolt and bloodshed, compared with which the Armenian troubles would be insignificant.

Fun at a Cake Walk.
MOORESTOWN, N. J., Oct. 19.—Five persons were shot yesterday, one probably fatally, during the progress of a colored cake walk at Fellowship. A man named Richards was playing a mouth organ, and James Hargett demanded the instrument. Richards refused to give it up, and Hargett struck him in the face. A general row and promiscuous shooting followed.

His Accounts Were Mixed.
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 19.—J. C. Schafer, Jr., a well-known carriage manufacturer, shot and killed himself yesterday. He was president of a building and loan association, and a shortage in his accounts discovered Thursday was the cause of the suicide. He had promised to make restitution yesterday.

Sunk in Collision.
SAULT STE MARIE, Mich., Oct. 19.—The steel steamer America, bound up, coal laden, was sunk in collision with the steamer W. H. Gilbert in the Soo river yesterday. The America was valued at $130,000. The Gilbert was apparently uninjured. All of the crew of the America escaped injury.

Rapture Anticipated.
ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Oct. 19.—It is the general belief that the board of revenue are arranging to withdraw the smuggling prosecutions from before the court and to adjudicate upon them themselves. There is serious discussion in the government ranks, and a rupture is shortly expected.

Pastor Noss' Objections.
SHAMOKIN, Pa., Oct. 19.—At the session of the eastern synod of the Reformed Church of the United States a strong temperance resolution was unanimously adopted, although Rev. J. G. Noss of New Holland took exception to what he called the intemperate zeal displayed by the Women's Christian Temperance union and similar organizations in their attitude toward the liquor evil.

Hansen's Move.
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—Thomas St. Clair and Hans Hansen, the murderers of Maurice Fitzgerald, mate of the bark Hesper, were hanged at San Quentin prison yesterday. Death in each case ensued rapidly. Hansen seemed reconciled to his fate, and assisted the deputies to adjust the straps on his ankles as he stood on the trap.

Nabbed in Brussels.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—A dispatch from Brussels announces that the three postal office robbers, Russell, Egan and Anderson, are under arrest in that city. No direct proof has been produced that these are the men who escaped from Ludlow street jail, but the officials here believe that they are the men wanted in New York city.
